SARAH ANNE'S COOKING CLASS

If your food budget is limiting your menu plans, here's a suggestion for dessert economy—frozen desserts made with evaporated milk, and freezing mix; a combination designed for thrift and eating enjoyment.

Gingerbread A La Mode

1 cup evaporated milk
1-3 cup evaporated milk diluted with 2-3 cup water
1 package vanilla freezing mix
Gingerbread squares — use your favorite recipe or a prepared gingerbread mix

Chill evaporated milk overnight. Whip 1 cup until stiff. Add contents of freezing mix to evaporated milk diluted with water. Beat with rotary beater until dissolved. Fold in whipped evaporated milk. Pour into freezing tray. Freeze until firm. Remove from tray to bowl. Break up with fork. Beat with electric or hand beater until fluffy. Return quickly to freezing tray. Freeze until firm but not too hard. When ready to serve, cut gingerbread in serving pieces. Split and half and fill with a generous portion of frozen dessert. Top with frozen dessert and make a fresh orange marmalade sauce if desired.

Orange Marmalade Sauce

Combine 3-4 cup orange marmalade and 1-4 cup boiling water in a saucepan. Boil for 3 minutes.

Peanut Butter Swirl

1 cup evaporated milk
1-3 cup evaporated milk diluted with 2-3 cup water
1 package vanilla freezing mix
Peanut butter sauce

Make frozen dessert by directions given above. After beating with electric beater, stir in 1-3 cup peanut butter sauce evenly over top of frozen dessert. With a tablespoon, cut down and under frozen dessert to make marbelized effect. Freeze until firm. Serve with chocolate sauce.

Peanut Butter Sauce

Combine 1-3 cup peanut butter, 2 tablespoons corn syrup, 1-4 cup water, 1-4 teaspoon salt and 1-4 teaspoon vanilla and blend well.

ANNOUNCE DATES FOR APPLE FESTIVAL

Winchester, Va. The thirty-first annual Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival will be held in this apple-land capital, Thursday, April 24, to Saturday, May 1-2, according to an announcement made here today by J. Lindsay Almond, president of the widely-known fete.

Once again this little city, rich in history as well as apples, is preparing to roll out a spring-time carpet of pink apple blossoms for some 100,000 visitors expected from all of the country. Eleven departments directors have been named to handle the affairs of the hundreds of men and women are being assigned to committees. In spite of the fact that the festival headquarters office of the fete has assumed a springtime air as staff members have begun work on the preconvention meetings and plans for the exhibition event four months hence.

The Festival's celebrated Parade of Queens, which features the crowning of the new performances in the expanded and great bank of stage seats in the Handley High School, the Shenandoah Valley Football Association's presentation of Winchester schools, the Festival Ball, the Coronation Ball of the production will again head the pageant presentation department of the Festival.

The Department of the Queen and Her Court, responsible for the selection of the Queen and her court of XXXII whose identity is closely guarded until their fete time, is busy on its task.

The parade will feature 50 floats, 60 bands and a Grand Marshal of national note.

Health and Beauty

It has been established beyond any doubt that x-raying should be done only when really necessary for diagnosis. We are all exposed to natural, inevitable radiation from the ground and air, as well as some from atomic age fall-out. No one is sure just what makes a safe, minimum dosage of radiation.

Many doctors say that there is no sign of a threshold dose below which genetic changes are not produced. Even the smallest aomunt will bring about some change. All dosage, however, distributed, are cumulative in effect. This is most important to keep in mind.

X-rays and radioactive isotopes are extremely valuable medical tools and there are cases where they must be used even in consideration of their harmful effect. A doctor with special training in this field should be consulted and should administer the treatment.

When x-ray was first brought into play, the harmful element was not realized. X-ray machines were put into the hands of such unknowing people as barbers and beauty operators. They were used with admiration and the resulting harm was terrible to see. People were left with scars that looked as if they were the result of burns. Often these scars gave trouble, and growth resulted form the irritation of the x-ray.

Often the practice of chest x-ray and tooth x-ray is said to be harmful. Doctors look with horror on the x-ray machine that used to be found in shoe stores.

More evidence has been brought to light concerning the importance of taking a vitamin supplement every day. Dr. Albert G. Hogan, professor emeritus of animal nutrition at the University of Missouri, told an A M A Symposium on Nutrition in Pregnancy that some human defects in intelligence and physical efficiency that are blamed on heredity may be caused by faulty diet of mothers during pregnancy.

It seems that rats receiving food inadequate in certain vitamins or other nutrients tend to produce an unusually large number of defective offspring. For many mothers-to-be this is cause for alarm.

To go a bit further, it is reasonable to assume that if diet is of such great importance during pregnancy, it is equally important to our health and well-being at all times. Some doctors believe that undesired ailments as heart disease and cancer have some relation to the kind of food we don't eat. If there is even a small chance that this is true — and we believe that there is very chance, we must all take stock of our eating habits.

APPOMATTOX, VIRGINIA

"At home" clothes are popular for the less formal entertaining. Comfort and smartness are combined in these clothes which make them favorites in many households.

If you are handy with a needle, you can make some of these outfits for the cost of one you would purchase in a store. All pattern companies have sections for "at-home fashions,"—just take your pick.

A long velvet evening skirt is a good way to start. It can be worn with a casual sweater or an elegant blouse.

Pants of all kinds are in demand. Velvet seems to be the popular choice. Unless you are small, you should wear the same under garments as you do with your suits and dresses. Stockings are a must.

One of the most attractive designs features knee-length pants and an ever-so-full open panel front, of the same material.

Shoes designed for an evening at home are closed-in and usually made of fabric and covered with bright colors and jewels.

If you're a bit of daring to wear an "at-home" outfit for your next informal party, you'll love it. It's a real dispatcher a number for previous. I next turned my attention to dressing the wounds. I wanted something to hold water. The only thing I could find was an old tin basin with a hole in the bottom. I got one of the strongest men to assist me and make him stick his finger up through the hole in the basin for a stopper and put some water in it and started to washing wounds. Upon examination I found that some of the wounds were putrid and filled with certain insects. I washed awhile and vomited awhile until I thought my shoe soles would come up. But I persevered until I finished the whole business. When I finished I went out and bought a bolt of white cotton cloth and gave the merchant a requisition on the government in payment. I sat down and tore the cloth up in strips and bandaged the wounds. This work altogether took me about twelve hours. I was up all night and did not stop to eat or sleep during the time. The most disorderly

Watering is no problem since many members of this group have vase-like centers which, when filled with water, will last plants for days.

Frequent repotting is no problem since once set in a suitable potting mixture, plants stay happy and healthy for a year or more. Perhaps the most important single ability of bromeliads is that they can thrive under avearge light conditions. The window without sun is ideal, or almost any extreme from artificial light to sun filtered through glass curtains will be satisfactory.

All bromeliads are similar in form. They are like a fountain of broad leaves sprouting from the base. The leaf color runs from deep white to rich moss-green to delicate tints of rose and leafy green growth. The leaf is seldom a solid tone. One color flows into another, and each plant is different. The colors change from season to season. There are at least fourteen different types.

The soil should drain well and contain a good deal of sand. Feeding is done infrequently and too much water means death to these plants. Tehy should not be planted in the same box or pot with philodendron or pregnant as both of these plants require more food and water than bromeliads can stand.

The vase and fountain silhouette of these plants lend themselves to any background. The color range is so most any interior decoration color scheme can be met. There are types — low growing — that are perfect for coffee tables or any spot where they will be viewed from above.

FOREST SERVICE SEEKS BLIGHT RESISTANT CHESTNUT

Large blight-free American chestnut trees were located in 36 states, including Virginia, in 1957. This, an A M A Symposium on Nutrition in Pregnancy that some human defects in intelligence and physical efficiency that are blamed on heredity may be caused by faulty diet of mothers during pregnancy.

It seems that rats receiving food inadequate in certain vitamins or other nutrients tend to produce an unusually large number of defective offspring. For many mothers-to-be this is cause for alarm.

Blight-resistant Chinese chestnuts have been grown in this country for some years. The nuts are similar to American chestnuts, but the tree is a small orchard type and, contrasted to the American variety, is of little value for timber.

The Forest Service would like to locate additional large American chestnut trees. Its scientists are willing to cooperate with private owners who would like to grow test trees by grafting. More information about this and instructions for grafting can be obtained in Virginia from the VPI Extension Service Forestry Department, Blacksburg.

In browsing through the early files of this 66 year old newspaper, and early news letters under the heading: "Spanish Oaks," I find that Spanish Oaks was the home of the beloved physician, Dr. Archibald Alexander Rice, near Stonewall.

Further, I find that Dr. Rice was a child prodigy, having finished Hampden-Sydney College. He became a poet, scientist, lecturer, professor and a major in the Confederate Army.

He came of a distinguished family. His uncle, Dr. John Holt Rice, was one of the founders of Hampden-Sydney College, and the first pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Richmond. His mother's brother, Dr. Archibald Alexander, was one of the founders of the Princeton Theological Seminary.

Dr. Carl A. Collins, Jr., pastor of the Liberty Baptist Church submitted his resignation to his congregation Sunday night to accept the Pastorate of the Marion Baptist Church, Marion, Virginia. It is effective February 16, 1958.

Dr. Collins will soon be entering his sixth year as Pastor in our community. His people have been responsive to the extent that more than $200,000 have been contributed to all causes. A new educational building has been completed. There have been 274 additions to the membership of the church. The Sunday School and the Training Union both have been fully departmentalized. The Brotherhood has been organized and has become one of the leading Brotherhoods of the State. The Woman's Missionary Union and her Auxiliaries have grown extensively.

In addition to his activities in his church much time and service has been rendered in the Civic Organizations and community activities. He has served as President of both the Elementary School P.T.-A. and the High School P.T.-A. He has served as Counselor each year of the High School Tri-Hi-Y, and the girl's Hi-Y, and Boy's Hi-Y. He is Past Chaplain of the American Legion, Department of Virginia, Past Chaplain of Post 104, American Legion and Past Commander of Post 104, American Legion. Dr. Collins has served as President of the Minister's Conference of the Appomattox Association, Ministerial Conference of Appomattox County, and is now Vice Moderator of the Appomattox Association.

Not only the members of Liberty Baptist Church but the citizens of Appomattox County extend to Dr. and Mrs. Collins and their two sons their best wishes for a happy and fruitful life in their new work and home.

Local Firemen Save Building

The Appomattox Volunteer Fire Department, aided by a bucket-brigade organized by neighbors, were successful in controlling a threatening fire Monday morning in the living quarters of Mr. and Mrs. T. Earl Cheatham, on the second floor of their store building.

The call was turned in by the driver of a milk truck at 9:15 A.M. It is believed to have originated at the center of a four-cornered flu and was first detected by Mrs. Cheatham. The fire loss, estimated at approximately $500, was confined to the second floor. It is believed to have originated from a faulty flu.

Fire Chief W. E. Hancock, who was serving his RFD route, came by Cheatham's store soon after the fire started and aided the firemen in the fight.

NEW BOOK IN COUNTY LIBRARY

"The Gallant Mrs. Stonewall," by Harnett T. Kane — Anna and Thomas "Stonewall" Jackson met by accident, were able to marry only through the intervention of a tragedy, and were separated through the tragic accidental shooting of Jackson by his own Confederate troops at Chancellorsville. In THE GALLANT MRS. STONEWALL, Harnett T. Kane shows what an spill road Jackson and Anna walked from the beginning. When she married the obscure soldier-professor, Anna had to face ridicule from old friends. But she stood by Jackson loyally, And when he suddenly emerged in the War Between the States as one of the great strategists of all times, she knew fulfillment and triumph beyond her highest hopes.

Drivers Killed In Accident

Two drivers were killed Friday morning when their tractor-trailer ran route from Richmond to Roanoke coming traffic when the crash occurred, state police reported. This man suffered cuts on the forehead and knee.. He was treated at the scene.

Both of the dead drivers were veteran employees of the Carter Trucking Co. and had recently been awarded safe driving awards.

With the completion of a three-point school improvement project, the foreseeable needs of the Appomattox public schools for construction and plant improvement will have been met. That is the opinion of Division Superintendent J. A. Burke, who has had a guiding hand in the bringing of the county school system to its present high level.

Last year a three-point program was undertaken, and projects laid out. Two of the projects have been completed and are in use. The third should be completed by April 1.

Now in use are:

School Bus Shop and Garage

Renovated wing in the Appomattox High School for the Home Economics Department.

About one-half completed, and to be ready, it is hoped, by April 1, is a new combination vocational-agriculture and industrial trades shop at Carver-Price High School.

These projects involve some $74,288 for building and improvements and $17,229 for equipment.

The new home economics department, in use, replaces an old home economics cottage on the school campus. The cottage will be put to other school use. The new department features two kitchens, living room and work room. The department has two instructors. Modernly equipped, it went into use last month.

The Bus Shop and Garage meets a long-felt need. It is located next to the community school cannery, on Route 460. Mr. H. A. Paulette is the Chief Mechanic on duty, and also serves as Shop Manager. Under a program of "preventive maintainance," this shop enables frequent inspection of buses, serving as repair jobs on the school system's vehicles. The pump is well-equipped, for repairs and replacement parts. Keeping the vehicles in tip-top shape is a good way to prevent accidents, and this program is expected to make for economy in operating the school buses.

The new building at the Carver-Price High School is the largest of the three in cost. Equipment has already arrived. The shop will enable better teaching of vocational-agriculture, and will feature classes in industrial trades, such as masonry, carpentry, mechanical drawing, metal work and electrical work, etc. Old frame quarters remain in use pending completion of the new building.

Supt. Burke points to the many improvements in the physical plants at county schools in recent years. In the two high schools are fairly new, the gymnasium and new wings at A. H. S, and the new elementary school, are major items in the development of the system under the guidance of Mr. Burke and the school board, with the splendid cooperation of the county supervisors and other officials.

The people of Appomattox County might well be proud of the work done in this generation to build up an outstanding school plant, to provide modern teaching facilities.
